BEARS WAIT FOR MEN WHO CLIMB UP TREE

Hair-Raising Experience of Three Prospectors in District Visited by Earthquake

SEWARD, Alaska, Nov. 22.—From Kodiak island and that particular part of the Alaskan peninsula that was visited last summer by the earthquake comes one of the best bear stories that has been turned loose in recent years. For many years Kodiak island has been the favorite hunting grounds for outside sportsmen in search of the big brown bear, and in fact the name Kodiak bear is perhaps better known than brown bear to hunters all over the world.

When Mount Katmai was in eruption last summer the berries and vegetation of Kodiak island was covered under a blanket of volcanic ash to a depth of from several inches to as much as three feet in some places and the natural food supply for the bears was cut short to a large extent. However during the fishing season the bears managed to get along pretty well on the salmon that run up the various streams and along the beach.

Become Nuisance
Early in the season the bears left the hills and have been living on the banks of the creeks, and now that the fishing season is over they are at a loss to get enough to eat and have taken to hunting both single and in droves and have really become a nuisance.

Before the government herd of cattle was removed from the experimental farm near Kodiak to Seward, several of the calves had been killed, and recently three prospectors were treed near Kodiak and were forced to spend the night in the tree while below two hungry brown bears attempted to get at them and were only driven away after one had been killed in the morning by a native and the other one had been badly wounded.

As soon as the three who had spent the night in the tree could get guns they returned to the scene of their right's imprisonment and got on the trunk of the wounded animal. They followed the trail for a distance of less than a mile and they came upon the clean picked bones of the brute that had kept them in the tree the night before. The bear had been killed and eaten by other bears, doubtless crazed by the smell of blood.

INCOME TAX TO MAKE GOOD ON TARIFF CUTS

Democrats Propose to Keep Treasury Full by Making Swollen Wealth Pay

WASHINGTON, November 28.—Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee, author of the excise tax bill, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, is framing a bill levying a general income tax under the conviction that in January next two additional States will ratify the constitutional amendment authorizing such a tax. Thirty-four states have ratified the amendment and with two more States to act favorably the amendment will become part of the constitution.

It is the Democratic plan, should the income tax be legalized, to make this tax supplemental to the new tariff legislation to be enacted at the special session to be called by President-elect Wilson for next April.

With the right to levy an income tax the labors of the Democratic tariff farmers will be lightened. They will not have to give so much thought to their cuts in the duties.

Two plans in reference to this new tax are being considered by Hull. One is a graduated tax, the percentage increasing with the amount of the income and the other a flat tax applying to incomes of more than $5000 a year.

Hull estimates that, under a straight 1 per cent income tax or all incomes of more than the $5000 exemption, the government can derive an annual revenue of $100,000,000, and that with a graduated tax increasing to 2 per cent on the largest incomes, so adjusted to fall most lightly on active wealth and heaviest on idle capital, a larger revenue can be secured.

The general income tax is to take the place of the proposed excise tax, which was expected to yield $50,000,000, and of the existing corporation tax, which produces $10,000,000 annually.

The straight tax plan has the advantage over the graduated tax of enabling tax collectors to collect at the source of the income in most instances and in doing away with many of the inquisitorial features of the graduated tax. Personal investigations of incomes have been found unpopular and expensive.

All American citizens in Asiatic Turkey are safe and unmolested, according to reports to the state department by Consul General Hollis at Beirut.

Commissioner of Public Safety Cornelius F. Lynch of Lawrence, Mass., has refused an application from Industrial Workers of the World for a parade.

Canada, drawing lessons from the United States life-saving system, is to equip her own service with motor power boats patterned after the American model.

An attempt to maintain winter navigation between St. John's, N. F., and Quebec is to be made by the Canadian government.
